

TWENTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1844.

SENATE.

After some unimportant business, Mr. ALLEN again called up the bill to refund the fine imposed upon

GENERAL ANDREW JACKSON.

Mr. WOODBRIDGE examined briefly the doctrine of instruction by State Legislatures. The Legislatures were not vested with hereditary power, but, like ours, their power was derivative, and we have the same right to instruct them as they have to instruct us. He had been three or four times instructed, and once in reference to an Indian treaty, a matter which was not only sealed to the Legislature, but to himself, until it was opened here. In this case the instructions of the Legislature were founded in entire misconception, and of course fell to the ground.

This Union was no Amphictyonic or Achaean League, such as it might have been considered under the confederation. The Constitution had supplied the defects that existed prior to its adoption. Besides that there was no authority given by the Constitution for this interference of the States, they were coram non jure for another reason, and that was, that it was contrary to our rights—it was against the established principle of jurists of impertium in imperio.

It was said that we were chosen by the States, and therefore responsible to them; so had we a President once chosen by the House of Representatives, but did it follow that he was bound to look chiefly to that House for direction? It is said that the freedom of debate exists here, but cui bono, if the wires are to be pulled by others? In reference to the bill itself, as it had been stripped of the only provision which freed it from objection in his mind, he felt compelled to vote against it.

Mr. HUGER was glad to find that this bill imputed no fault to Judge Hall. The judge had been a fellow townsman with him, and they had practiced law together. He believed, from what he knew of him, that up to the day of his death he was incapable of any act of dishonesty. He had blamed him for his conduct in this transaction, but respected his memory. He would not, if it was in his power, erase from the pages of history either the account of the conduct of the Judge or General on this occasion. The whole transaction furnished one of the finest moral lessons ever inculcated upon any country.

Mr. PORTER then briefly assigned the reasons why he should vote against the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed by the following vote:

Yeas—Messrs. Allen, Atchison, Atherton, Bagby, Barrow, Benton, Breese, Buchanan, Colquhoun, Fairfield, Foster, Francis, Fulton, Hannegan, Haywood, Henderson, Huger, Jarnagin, King, McDuffie, Mangum, Rives, Semple, Sevier, Sturgeon, Tallmadge, Tappan, Walker, and Woodbury—30.

Nays—Messrs. Archer, Bates, Bayard, Berrien, Choate, Clayton, Dayton, Evans, Huntington, Merrick, Miller, Pearce, Phelps, Porter, Simmons, Upham, and Woodbridge—16.

The bill was then read a third time, and passed.

PEA PATCH.

The bill to settle the title to this island was taken up, and an amendment proposed by Mr. BAYARD, which gave rise to some debate; and the bill was again laid on the table.

RED RIVER.

Mr. BARROW called up the bill appropriating $2,000 for the survey of the mouth of the above river; and, after some explanatory remarks by Mr. B., the bill was passed.

The Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Before the debate on the general ticket subject was resumed,

Mr. CHAPPELL, of Ga., called the attention of the House to a report of his colleague (Mr. Stephens's) remarks, as he found them in the Madisonian, in which it was said that his (Mr. C.'s) sentiments on the district law were not generally known in the convention that nominated him—he asked his colleague if the report was correct?

Mr. STEPHENS said that he had replied to some remarks of Mr. Black, of Ga., in which that gentleman had contended that the people of Ga. were united upon the general ticket system, in proof of which he had cited the late election, in which both parties had run general tickets, and though the Whigs in convention declared the law of Congress to be constitutional, yet they had sent two Representatives here, one agreeing with him, and the other in favor of the district system. In reply to these remarks, he (Mr. Stephens) had stated that though his colleague was on the committee that reported the resolutions alluded to, his disagreement with the majority of that committee was not generally known.

Mr. S. said that, having the floor, with the permission of the House, he would call attention to the reports of the remarks of another gentleman from Georgia, made yesterday, when he would designate as the praying member, (Mr. Stiles,) as he had not made a speech in the House in which he had not invoked the Supreme Being in some form.

Mr. STILES disavowed the remarks as reported.

Mr. STEPHENS then read in the report of Mr. S.'s remarks, these words: "May the Lord God Almighty have mercy on his soul;" and observed that he might be under some obligation to the member for his intervention in his behalf, if he had not been taught to believe that "the prayer of the wicked availeth nothing."

Mr. DOUGLASS then took the floor in defence of his report, and, we are sorry to say, spoke in very bad taste. He made an attack, rather personal than argumentative, in reply to Mr. Barnard, of N. Y. The Whig members were arraigned for making this a party question.

Mr. BARNARD asked leave to make an explanation of some of his remarks, Mr. Douglass having charged him with giving the lie to the record of his own Legislature.

[Mr. D. would not yield, but went on using the words "skulking," "sneaking," to the member from New York.]

Mr. D. agreed that while the States had a primary right to prescribe the time, place, and manner of election, the ultimate right was vested in Congress; if, however, Congress did anything it was bound to do everything. It was bound to regulate, if the States did not regulate, the elections.

When the Speaker's hammer fell upon his desk, about forty members sprang to the floor, which was assigned to Mr. Weller, of Ohio, who very summarily moved the previous question—which was seconded.

The yeas and nays were ordered on the main question.

In answer to several inquiries, the Speaker said the main question would be upon the resolutions submitted by Mr. Dromgoole, as a substitute for that in the report.

Mr. THOMASSON asked the Speaker if ever there was one example where members had voted in a case touching their own rights?

The SPEAKER did not feel bound to answer every question that might be submitted.

The main question was ordered to be now put by a vote of 128 to 64.

This question being ordered, the House decided to adopt Mr. Dromgoole's resolutions by a vote of 127 to 57.

A division of the question was then called for. Several members, among whom were Messrs. ADAMS, SCHENCK, VINTON, CLINGMAN, BELSER, and CAMPBELL, asked to be excused from voting, and assigned their reasons.

An effort was made to crowd down Mr. SCHENCK, but, although as scrupulous as any one for preserving order, this gentleman knew, and maintained, his rights.

Great confusion ensued for some time; finally the vote was taken on the first resolution, (the right of the members from the twenty-two districts States,) and it was decided in the affirmative by 128 to 2. [The two negative votes cast by Messrs. J. R. Ingersoll and E. D. Davis.]

The question then coming up as to the right of the members from the "four States."

Mr. SCHENCK again inquired of the Speaker if the members from those States had a right to vote in their own case—and made this a point of order.

The SPEAKER decided that they had not the right.

Mr. DROMGOOLE then insisted that the question should be taken separately upon the right of each individual member.

The vote was then taken on each of the members sitting from New Hampshire. Mr. Burke was endorsed by 128 to 63; Mr. Reding by 120 to 63; Mr. Norris by 117 to 63.

[Mr. VANCE, of Ohio, suggested that the vote should be taken by States, but objection was made, and the House continued the delightful recreation of calling the yeas and nays—each time to thinner benches.]

The vote was then taken on Mr. Hale, and he was whitewashed by 108 to 67.

Mr. HUDSON, of Mass., moved an adjournment; but it was refused after a count.

The vote was taken on Mr. Black, of Georgia, and he was passed by 109 to 55.

Mr. Stephens's case next came up.

[There was no little chuckling among a portion of the majority when Mr. S.'s turn came; it having been suggested by some of them that only enough should vote in the affirmative to make a quorum, and leave the Whigs to reject Mr. Stephens; but this discreditable movement was not successful.]

Mr. Stephens was passed by a vote of 93 to 42.

Mr. McCONNELL moved an adjournment, and the count was taken by tellers—the motion rejected, 72 to 73.

Mr. Haralson's name was called, and at this point the Reporter "came awa'."

And left the session,—

He saw they were resolved 'a'—

On his oppression.

There was every prospect that, if the House did not get tired of their recreation, the sitting would last until midnight, if not till cock-crowing.

NOTICE.—The Campbells are coming! Hard to beat! Fair play and no gouging!—No monopoly!—BEEF! BEEF! BEEF!—To my old friends and fellow citizens, and the public generally—I return thanks to you all for the kind patronage you have extended to me since I have catered for you in the Centre Market, and now make known to you that I (in addition to my stalls in old Centre Market, next to Mr. James Rhodes's, and opposite Frederick Hagar's) have a store on the corner of 6th street and Pennsylvania avenue, where, at all times, I have on hand the best assortment of Beef, both fresh and salt, that can be procured in this city. I now have for slaughter 80 head of fat cattle, raised and fed by Hamilton Rogers, Esq., and 60 head of spayed heifers, raised and fed by Titball, (both of which gentlemen are the best feeders of cattle in Virginia,) and drove with the greatest care by Robert L. Arnstead and Bascable, and purchased for me by a gentleman of this city who is admitted to be the best judge of good Beef in the United States; and will have, commencing on Saturday morning, and continuing each market morning thereafter, a portion of said extraordinary fine Beef, at 64 cents per pound, first cuts.

All boarding houses and families who are fond of good living will give me a call, for I am convinced if you once call you will assuredly purchase.

DR. TAYLOR'S BALSAM OF LIVERWORT, prepared at 375 Bowery, New York, is justly celebrated as the most wonderful curative of pulmonary diseases in the whole range of pharmacy, some of our most respectable physicians use it in their practice, prescribing it as the best of all remedies for pulmonary complaints and physical debility, and they unhesitatingly recommend it to be kept in every family of a consumptive tendency. It is universally received as one of the standard medicines of the day. The great merit of Dr. Taylor's Balsam is, that in all cases of pulmonary complaints it gives immediate relief. A single bottle will, in most cases, reveal its astonishing virtues, and open at once the fountain of health and strength to the afflicted. Read the following certificate:

"Being constitutionally predisposed to Consumption, (a number of my family having died with this disease) and having suffered from irritation of the Lungs, accompanied with cough and raising matter and blood, together with severe pain in my side and breast, till I was supposed to be beyond recovery, I was induced by advice of Dr. Perkins, as a last resort, to try "Taylor's Balsam of Liverwort." I have taken five bottles in all. I began to improve with the first bottle, and while taking the third, was so far recovered as to be able to get about. Since which time, by continued use of it, I am quite restored, and able to attend to my usual business. To persons suffering from coughs and affections of the Lungs, I do earnestly recommend it.
(Signed) "JAS. C. SCOTT."
ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Dec. 16, 1842.

Observe.—The only genuine Taylor's Balsam of Liverwort has an engraved label around each bottle, with the signature of Dr. Gordon J. Leeds, attached, to prevent counterfeits. In order to be certain of obtaining the genuine article, purchase only at the original office, 375 Bowery.
